INTRODUCTION

The number of UK students who studied abroad for credit during the academic year 2014-15 increased by 1.6% to 1,098 enrollments. Approximately 15.04% of the 2015 graduating class earned credit abroad at some point during their UK education.

The majority, or 64.5%, of UK students chose destinations in Europe, which is higher than national averages. Spain was the most popular destination, followed by United Kingdom, France, Germany, and Ireland. Together, the College of Arts and Sciences and the Gatton College of Business account for 35% of the total education abroad enrollment. The College of Design enrolled the largest proportion of its students abroad. UK Sponsored programs enrolled 48.6% (534) of education abroad participants, followed by UK Partner programs at 18.3% (201). Sixty-six UK students participated in UK Exchange programs. The data suggest that UK Education Abroad is successful at enrolling minority students relative to their proportion in the student body. In spite of these positive trends, the University of Kentucky ranks last among its benchmark institutions with regard to education abroad participation.

For the purposes of this report, UK education abroad enrollment is compared to national enrollments as reported in the Open Doors report published annually by the Institute of International Education. Open Doors 2014 reports on enrollment during the academic year 2012-13, and is the basis for comparisons in the present document. The 2015 Open Doors report for 2013-14 enrollment will be released in November 2015.

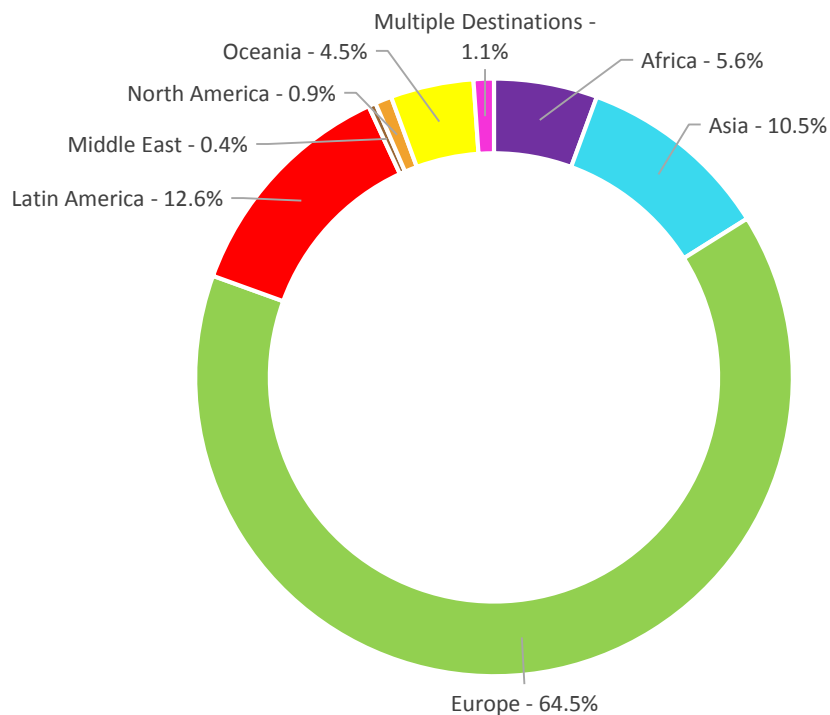

UK EDUCATION ABROAD ENROLLMENT

HOST REGIONS OF UK STUDENTS, FOR-CREDIT

The majority, or 64.5%, of UK students chose destinations in Europe, which is above national averages. At 12.6%, programs in Latin America account for the second largest proportion of enrollments- which is below national averages- followed by Asia at 10.5%. Enrollments in the Middle East declined during this academic year due to lack of UK-Sponsored programming in the region, which had accounted for the majority of enrollments in academic year 2013-2014. Only 1.1% of students participated on programs that involved study in multiple countries.

PROGRAM ENROLLMENT BY REGION & PROGRAM, FOR CREDIT

Popular UK faculty-directed programs in Africa have continued to lead enrollments to this region of the world, particularly to South Africa. Similarly, UK Sponsored programs have sustained enrollments to Asia, especially China. The most popular programs in Europe include the CCSA London Winter program, Engineering's programs in Karlsruhe and various faculty-directed programs. Enrollments in Latin America are led by credit-bearing options via Shoulder to Shoulder Global. Oceania enrollments remain modest, but are growing with the popularity of the Bluegrass Down Under initiative.

HOST REGION OF UK PARTICIPANTS, NON-CREDIT

The UK International Center also provides services to individuals participating in international education experiences for which credit is not earned. This largely includes group travel programming, such as the Shoulder to Shoulder program in Ecuador. Non-credit-bearing enrollments, such as athletic and music-related group travel programming, are also included here. Starting in Academic Year 2014-15, services will be provided to these individuals by both the UK Education Abroad office and the Office of International Health, Safety & Security (IHSS). Non-credit group programs will be accounted for by IHSS.

ENROLLMENT BY UK COLLEGE, FOR-CREDIT

The College of Arts & Sciences enrolled 226 students in education abroad programs during 2014-2015, accounting for 20.6% of the total education abroad enrollment. The Gatton College of Business and Economics followed with 163 students, or roughly 14.8%. The College of Design sent the largest proportion of its students abroad, at 10.9%. Proportional enrollment is calculated using total enrollment in each respective college.

ENROLLMENT BY UK COLLEGE, CLASS OF 2015

Among the class of 2015⁶, 15.04% (n=617) of UK undergraduates participated in a credit-bearing education abroad program, which is slightly higher than national averages for bachelor students (14.3%) and higher than the preceding class of 2014 (14.19%). The College of Design led with the greatest overall percentage of students in the Class of 2015 who had studied abroad, at 45.83%. The College of Arts & Sciences had the overall largest number of students who had earned credit abroad, followed by the Colleges of Agriculture, Food & Environment and Business & Economics.

LEADING COLLEGE ENROLLMENT BY DEPARTMENT, FOR-CREDIT

Within the College of Arts & Sciences, International Studies majors and Biology majors account for 32.3% of the college's enrollment, followed by Psychology majors at 14.2%. Marketing (27.6%) and Accounting (22.1%) students are the most frequently represented majors in the Gatton College of Business and Economics. Students are classified by primary major.

STUDENT CLASSIFICATION, AT TIME OF BEING ABROAD

At 50.3%, seniors account for half of total enrollment while juniors account for 26.8% of total enrollment. This is not surprising as most students typically wait until the summer after their junior year to study abroad. Priority on first and second year programming in the coming years will likely shows gains in underclassmen participation.

DURATION OF STUDY, FOR CREDIT

Nearly 80% of UK students participate on short-term programs, which is much higher than national averages. These programs generally include summer, winter intersession and any program lasting fewer than 8 weeks. 19% of UK students participate on mid-length or one-semester programs, and just over 1% of students spend a full academic year abroad.

TERM OF STUDY, FOR-CREDIT

Summer 2015 programs enrolled 64.4% of the total number of participants in 2014-2015. UK students generally favor the spring semester (12.5%) over the fall semester (6.6%), which is generally the case at many public institutions.

PROGRAM TYPE, FOR-CREDIT

In 2014-15, UK Sponsored programs enrolled 48.6% (534) of the total education abroad enrollment, followed by UK Partner programs at 18.3% (201). UK Consortia programs enrolled 133 students, accounting for 12.1% of the total enrollment.

¹⁰ "UK Organization" is a new designation that includes programs such as Shoulder to Shoulder Global and Alternative Service Breaks, which were categorized as "UK Sponsored" in previous reports. Therefore the enrollment number of UK Sponsored participants between this reporting year and previous years is not directly comparable.

¹¹ "UK Independent" programs include medical rotations, independent study and research abroad, etc.

ENROLLMENT DEMOGRAPHICS BY EXPERIENCE TYPE¹²

Study Abroad was the most popular experience type across all demographics. The data suggest no particular trends favoring a particular enrollment type by race/ethnicity. Greater diversification is expected as these experience types are further articulated within the program portfolio.

Race/Ethnicity	Study Abroad	Research Abroad	Intern Abroad	Teach Abroad	Service Abroad

ENROLLMENT DEMOGRAPHICS, FOR-CREDIT¹³

Race/Ethnicity

The data suggest that minority student participation has remained robust in UK's Education Abroad programs. All racial minority groups represent an equal or larger percentage in education abroad enrollments than campus-wide enrollment, with the exception of African American students, whose proportion has fallen since last year. Even so, Education Abroad enrolls a significantly higher percentage of African-American students than the national average.

Race/Ethnicity	2013-2014 Enrollment	2014-2015 Enrollment	Percentage of EA Enrollment	Percentage of UK Enrollment	National Avg. (IIE, 2012-2013)

Gender

Although female students account for 51.5% of UK campus-wide enrollment, 66.3% of the education abroad enrollment is disproportionately female. However, this is generally comparable to national education abroad enrollment trends as reported in Open Doors.

Gender	2013-2014 Enrollment	2014-2015 Enrollment	Percentage of EA Enrollment	Percentage of UK Enrollment	National Avg. (IIE, 2012-2013)

¹³ Unless otherwise noted, data on total UK enrollment was pulled from the HANA Database.

Gender by Region

As female students account for 66.3% of education abroad enrollment, it is not surprising to see that female student enrollment was proportionately higher across regions. The data suggest no particular trends favoring a particular region type by gender, although men appear to favor Asia.

LGBTQ

Unfortunately, UK does not collect data on sexual orientation. Data available via the Student Experience in the Research University (SERU) survey based at the Center for Studies in Higher Education (CSHE) at the University of California, Berkeley, suggest that LGBTQ students are more likely to study abroad compared to their peers. UK Education Abroad does not collect this data at the time of application, but does ask students via a voluntary pre-departure survey. On average, about 9% of students do identify as LGBTQ.

Residency Status

The data show that significantly more in-state students than out-of-state students participated in education abroad programs in 2014-2015, which matches with the overall campus proportion.

Undergraduate First-Generation Status

16.1% (152) of undergraduate education abroad participants reported being first-generation students, which is lower than the overall campus proportion. This status is not a required question in the education abroad application.

Undergraduate Honors Enrollment

18% of undergraduate education abroad participants are in the Honors Program, yet only about 4.6% of UK students are, suggesting that education abroad programming appeals disproportionately to academically high achieving students. This data does not reflect Chellgren, Gaines or other programs for high-achieving students.

Undergraduate vs. Graduate/Professional Enrollment

Not surprisingly, undergraduate students disproportionately enroll in credit-bearing education abroad programs, reflecting 85.8% of the total enrollment.

Athlete Enrollment

Athletes are traditionally underrepresented in Education Abroad programming. For the purposes of this report, “athletes” are those students who participate on an athletic team at UK, but who are not necessarily on scholarship.

Disabled Student Enrollment

Students with disabilities are traditionally underrepresented in Education Abroad programming. For the purposes of this report, “disabled students” are those who have registered with the UK Disability Resource Center.

Veteran Enrollment

All students who have previously served in the U.S. Armed Forces are categorized as veterans. Although about % of the UK student body has veteran status, they remain underrepresented in Education Abroad programming.

Student Classification	2013-2014 EA Enrollment	2014-2015 EA Enrollment	Percentage of EA Enrollment	Percentage of UK Enrollment

Singletary Scholar Enrollment

The Singletary Scholarship is the university’s most prestigious undergraduate scholarship, and is awarded to exceptionally high-achieving students. Enrollment of Singletary Scholars in Education Abroad programming is already much higher than the campus proportion, but is expected to decrease in coming years as recent changes to eliminate the summer scholarship.

Pell Grant Recipient Enrollment

Students receiving Pell Grants are also eligible to apply for the Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship. Nonetheless, Pell Grant recipients remain underrepresented in Education Abroad programming.

Transfer Student Enrollment

Students who transfer from other institutions are generally underrepresented in Education Abroad enrollments. This was the case for students at UK during this academic year. Only undergraduate students are counted in this data.

Student Classification	2013-2014 Undergraduate EA Enrollment	2014-2015 Undergraduate EA Enrollment	Percentage of Undergraduate EA Enrollment	Percentage of Undergraduate UK Enrollment

Chellgren Fellow Enrollment

The Chellgren Fellowship is a highly selective honor conferred on high achieving undergraduate students. The program aims to cultivate academic achievement through extracurricular experiences and scholarship advising. Nearly 2% of undergraduate Education Abroad participants were Chellgren Fellows- much higher than the campus proportion.

Student Classification	2013-2014 Undergraduate EA Enrollment	2014-2015 Undergraduate EA Enrollment	Percentage of Undergraduate EA Enrollment	Percentage of Undergraduate UK Enrollment

BENCHMARK INSTITUTIONS, OPEN DOORS 2012-2013

The University of Kentucky ranks last among our benchmark institutions with regard to education abroad participation. Among the nearly 900 institutions reporting education abroad enrollment data to the Institute of International Education for the 2014 report (based on 2012-2013 enrollment data), UK ranks at 79. At the top among our benchmarks, the University of Minnesota – Twin Cities sends more than three times as many students abroad as the University of Kentucky. Note: The IIE Open Doors Report has different reporting guidelines (i.e., non-degree seeking students, international student participation, etc.).

SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE INSTITUTIONS, OPEN DOORS 2012-2013

The University of Kentucky ranks ninth among the fourteen institutions of the Southeastern Conference. At the top among SEC schools, Texas A&M University sends more than twice as many students abroad as the University of Kentucky. Because of a consortium agreement, students at any SEC school can study abroad on programs at any other SEC school at the in-state tuition rate.
